Report of the Secretary-General on women and peace and security

I. Introduction

1. In its presidential statement S/PRST/2004/40, the Security Council requested the Secretary-General to submit to it, in October 2005, an action plan for the implementation of resolution 1325 (2000) on women and peace and security across the United Nations system, with a view to strengthening commitment and accountability at the highest levels, as well as to allow for improved accountability, monitoring and reporting on progress on implementation within the United Nations system.

2. The present report is prepared pursuant to that request.

II. Preparation of the system-wide action plan on implementation of Security Council resolution 1325 (2000)

3. The Inter-Agency Task Force on Women and Peace and Security, in partnership with Member States and non-governmental organizations, held initial consultations on the framework and contents of the system-wide action plan for the implementation of Security Council resolution 1325 (2000) in December 2004. The Task Force, chaired by the Special Adviser on Gender Issues and Advancement of Women, comprises representatives of 22 United Nations system entities and observers from intergovernmental organizations and civil society.¹

4. As a first step in drafting the action plan, the Task Force produced a matrix based on intergovernmental mandates set forth in resolution 1325 (2000) and the subsequent presidential statements on women and peace and security (S/PRST/2001/31, 2002/32 and 2004/40). In April 2005, the Special Adviser on Gender Issues and Advancement of Women briefed the United Nations entities that are members of the Executive Committee on Peace and Security. The Committee supported the initiative as providing a framework for system-wide cooperation and an opportunity to focus on enhanced collaboration for the full implementation of resolution 1325 (2000). All United Nations entities with mandates related to peace and security were invited to submit contributions to the action plan. Consultations were held within the entities to coordinate areas of responsibility of each entity and specific outputs to be produced under the plan. The action plan annexed to the present report draws on contributions received from 37 entities (see annex).

III. Framework of the system-wide action plan

A. Policy framework

5. Resolution 1325 (2000) and the three subsequent presidential statements on women, peace and security constitute important landmarks and provide a framework for action. The Security Council stressed the importance of bringing gender perspectives to the centre of all United Nations efforts related to peace and security and called for action under a number of thematic and cross-cutting areas.

6. Furthermore, the report of the High-level Panel on Threats, Challenges and Change (A/59/565) and the report of the Secretary-General "In larger freedom: towards development, security and human rights for all" (A/59/2005) proposed a number of initiatives of vital importance to millions of women and girls in conflict and post-conflict areas, including: the creation of a Peacebuilding Commission; increased focus on conflict prevention; the responsibility to protect populations from genocide, war crimes, ethnic cleansing and crimes against humanity; more effective protection of human rights; and enhanced rule of law.

7. In the 2005 World Summit Outcome (General Assembly resolution 60/1), the world's leaders reaffirmed their commitment to the full and effective implementation of Security Council resolution 1325 (2000). They underlined the importance of integrating a gender perspective and of women having the opportunity for equal participation and full involvement in all efforts to maintain and promote peace and security, as well as the need to increase their role in decision-making at all levels. Integrating a gender perspective in the design and work of the Peacebuilding Commission is a key element for the success of the Commission's work, taking into account its mandate to bring together all relevant actors, to marshal resources and to propose integrated strategies for post-conflict peacebuilding and recovery.

B. Purposes and time frame

8. The action plan will be used by United Nations entities to:

(a) Formulate concrete strategies, actions and programmes, in a consistent and effective manner, to advance the role of women in peace and security areas;

(b) Ensure more efficient support to Member States and other actors in national and regional level implementation of resolution 1325 (2000);

(c) Strengthen the commitment and accountability of the United Nations system at the highest levels;

(d) Enhance inter-agency cooperation.

9. In the framework of enhanced coordination and accountability, the action plan will be utilized by intergovernmental and inter-agency bodies as a yardstick against which to assess periodically the United Nations system's efforts. It is proposed that the plan cover the period from 2005 to 2007.

C. Structure

10. In keeping with the mandates given by the Security Council in resolution 1325 (2000) and the relevant presidential statements, the plan has been structured according to the following 12 areas of action:

- A. Conflict prevention and early warning;
- B. Peacemaking and peacebuilding;
- C. Peacekeeping operations;
- D. Humanitarian response;
- E. Post-conflict reconstruction and rehabilitation;
- F. Disarmament, demobilization and reintegration;
- G. Preventing and responding to gender-based violence in armed conflict;
- H. Preventing and responding to sexual exploitation and abuse by United Nations staff, related personnel and United Nations partners;
- I. Gender balance;
- J. Coordination and partnership;
- K. Monitoring and reporting;
- L. Financial resources.

11. Under each area of action, entities identified those objectives that fall within their respective mandates and proposed strategies and actions for their fulfilment. Each entity also indicated expected outcomes within specific time lines, given its role and functions and the resources at its disposal. The responsibility for implementation of the activities planned by each entity under the action plan will lie with that entity.

D. Inter-agency coordination

12. The United Nations System Chief Executives Board for Coordination (CEB) is the highest inter-agency body within the United Nations system with responsibility for coordination. It is composed of the executive heads of the member organizations and is assisted by two high-level committees, the High Level Committee on Programmes and the High Level Committee on Management.

13. The Executive Committees on Peace and Security and on Humanitarian Affairs were set up by the Secretary-General to provide executives at the highest levels with a forum to discuss and formulate strategies to prevent and respond to armed conflict and humanitarian emergencies. On an ad hoc basis, the Executive Committees deal with those issues that pertain to the situation of women in various conflict-stricken areas, including gender-based violence, sexual exploitation and abuse. The United Nations Development Group collaborates with the Executive Committees in support of the broader goal of peacebuilding and develops policies, guidelines and procedures to improve the work of the United Nations country team network.

14. The inter-agency body with a broad mandate to deal with coordination on gender issues is the Inter-Agency Network on Women and Gender Equality, which is a network of gender focal points from United Nations entities. The Inter-Agency Network monitors and coordinates the mainstreaming of a gender perspective in the programmatic, normative and operational work of the United Nations system. The Inter-Agency Task Force on Women, Peace and Security is one of 10 task forces of the Inter-Agency Network and has been serving as the focal point for inter-agency consultations on the implementation of resolution 1325 (2000). It is a consultative technical body with no decision-making authority on behalf of participating entities.

15. Other inter-agency coordination bodies that are relevant to the issues of women, peace and security include the:

- Inter-Agency Standing Committee and its Task Force on Gender and Humanitarian Assistance
- Inter-Agency Coordination Group on Mine Action and its Steering Committee on Gender and Mine Action
- United Nations Framework Team for Coordination on Conflict Prevention
- Task Force on Children and Armed Conflict
- Inter-Agency Working Group on Disarmament, Demobilization and Reintegration
- Integrated mission task forces.

E. Accountability mechanisms

16. Intergovernmental bodies such as the Security Council, the General Assembly, the Economic and Social Council and the Commission on the Status of Women, and other competent intergovernmental and expert bodies, play a critical role in providing oversight and ensuring accountability of United Nations entities. They set policies, standards and norms for gender mainstreaming and empowerment of women for Member States, international organizations and civil society and provide resources, monitor progress and identify gaps and challenges.

17. At the level of United Nations entities, the overall responsibility and accountability for gender mainstreaming rests with the heads of the entities. In practice, to support and mainstream gender considerations, United Nations entities rely mostly on networks of gender advisers and units, focal points and gender theme groups. Each entity reports, for monitoring and evaluation purposes, to its own intergovernmental body in the first instance.

IV. Moving forward: conclusions and recommendations

18. Although it is the first time that the United Nations system has embarked on a planning effort of such breadth and complexity, covering virtually all major areas of action in the field of women and peace and security, the system-wide action plan provides a wealth of information on activities being carried out by the United Nations system for women in conflict and post-conflict areas. The action plan also provides an overview of available expertise and resources on women and peace and security issues as captured in individual submissions of United Nations entities under each area of action. Most strategies and actions proposed to meet the objectives set in Security Council resolution 1325 (2000) and the related presidential statements provide a long-term framework for action and for achieving concrete results in the period between 2005 and 2007.

19. The strategies and activities in the action plan should result in measurable improvement in the United Nations system's contributions to the empowerment of women in conflict areas. During the proposed time frame of the action plan the system would review the adequacy of existing operational tools, guidelines and manuals for gender mainstreaming and integrate a gender perspective into a wide range of its programmes, policies and projects. Action plans on mainstreaming gender would be developed, inter alia, for the areas of peacekeeping and political affairs. Emphasis would be given to monitoring compliance with international humanitarian and human rights laws and preventing and reporting on violations of women's rights. Gender-sensitive programming would be expanded in such areas as post-conflict reconstruction, mine clearance, disarmament, demobilization and reintegration and HIV/AIDS prevention. Research and policy analysis would be advanced on a range of issues, including conflict prevention and early warning mechanisms. In many areas, guidelines on how to institutionalize women's contributions, including in decision-making and participation, would be developed, field tested, fine-tuned and implemented. More intensive efforts would be made to build local women's capacity for peacemaking and peacebuilding. Training, gender sensitization and capacity-building for United Nations staff, uniformed personnel and civilian police would be stepped up. Determined actions would be taken to prevent and combat gender-based violence, including sexual exploitation and abuse.

20. At the same time, an overview of the actions and strategies in the action plan reveals that the available expertise and efforts in various action areas are not of equal strength. In some areas there are overlapping activities and in a number of areas there are gaps. Examples of areas with gaps include: the collection of sex-disaggregated data and statistics as part of conflict prevention and early warning efforts; capacity-building for staff to incorporate gender perspectives in conflict prevention work; gender mainstreaming in all conflict prevention and early warning efforts and in humanitarian response, including in the work of system-wide mechanisms; more systematic incorporation of gender perspectives in peace agreements; and enhanced women's participation in formal peace processes. More efforts are needed to protect women's rights, including to prevent, document and report on gender-based violence. Efforts in this area could entail the creation of a comprehensive monitoring and compliance mechanism.

21. An analysis of gender perspectives in reports of the Secretary-General to the Security Council for the period from July 2004 to July 2005, carried out by the Office of the Special Adviser on Gender Issues and Advancement of Women, revealed that 47.1 per cent of the reports made multiple references to gender concerns and 21.9 per cent made minimal reference, while 31 per cent of the reports made no or only one mention of women or gender issues. While this constitutes progress compared with earlier reports, it clearly indicates that the Security Council needs to receive more quantitative and qualitative information on the implementation of resolution 1325 (2000) in all country and thematic reports.

22. It is expected that, through the reviews of the implementation of the action plan and inter-agency coordination, gaps and overlapping will be more precisely assessed and new initiatives will be developed to remedy them.

23. In terms of accountability, implementation of resolution 1325 (2000) would greatly benefit from additional attention from intergovernmental legislative bodies. An analysis of Security Council resolutions and presidential statements carried out by the Office of the Special Adviser revealed that, in the period from July 2004 to July 2005, language on women or gender issues was included in 9 out of 63 resolutions (14.2 per cent) and 15 out of 62 presidential statements (24.1 per cent).

24. Given the objectives of the system-wide action plan set forth in paragraph 8 above and the increasing number of United Nations entities having a role to play in the implementation of resolution 1325 (2000), there is an urgent need to strengthen coordination and accountability.

25. Building on the existing inter-agency cooperation arrangements and accountability systems, the following concrete actions are proposed for the purpose of strengthening United Nations capacity for the implementation of resolution 1325 (2000) and related presidential statements:

At the intergovernmental level

(a) Enhance intergovernmental oversight, monitoring and follow-up on the implementation of resolution 1325 (2000);

At the system-wide level

(b) Working through the High Level Committee on Programmes and with the participation of all concerned organizations as well as components of the Secretariat, to (i) ensure operational coordination of inter-agency efforts and joint activities of United Nations entities under the system-wide plan and (ii) monitor and advise executive heads in CEB on the progress in the coordinated implementation of the plan;

(c) Use a system of lead agencies wherever feasible to ensure dialogue, including joint setting of priorities and goals with partners, and overall coordination and monitoring of progress in the assigned area;

(d) Increase interaction and coordination at all levels with civil society;

At the United Nations entity level

(e) Hold heads of entities, special representatives and envoys of the Secretary-General responsible for gender mainstreaming and full implementation of resolution 1325 (2000), and ensure that accountability filters through to programme managers and desk officers for all programmes, projects and activities both in the field and at Headquarters;

(f) Appoint a focal point or a group of focal points at sufficiently high levels reporting to the highest levels of the entity in order to monitor progress in implementation of resolution 1325 (2000);

(g) Develop strengthened internal accountability procedures to monitor progress in the entity's implementation of the plan;

At the field level

(h) Enhance inter-agency cooperation in the field, including through United Nations country teams, gender theme groups and gender advisers and units, and improve cooperation with national Governments, women's national machineries for the advancement of women and promotion of gender equality, and civil society.

26. The Security Council may wish to consider introducing a biennial report on the overall implementation of the system-wide action plan, which may also be submitted to the General Assembly. The biennial monitoring reports on the action plan can be alternated with thematic reports on women, peace and security, thus ensuring balance between implementation and policy-making cycles. Progress in the attainment of specific objectives by each entity could be assessed periodically by the organizations or offices concerned in the context of their own evaluation procedures.

27. The system-wide action plan is a tool for better coordination and building on synergies of the United Nations system. It will enable the system to align its activities with the goals of resolution 1325 (2000) endorsed by Member States. The plan provides an opportunity to draw on the expertise and resources of the system encompassing the full spectrum of peace and security issues. As such, it represents a contribution towards the goals of ensuring that women live more secure and productive lives and are able to fully enjoy their human rights and fundamental freedoms.

A. Conflict prevention and early warning

A.1. Develop a comprehensive system-wide strategy and action plan to integrate gender perspectives in all conflict prevention work.

Entity	Strategies and actions	Main outputs	Time line
DDA	Build upon and implement the 2003 gender mainstreaming action plan to promote an active and visible gender policy in the field of arms control and disarmament.	Updating and implementing the action plan.	2005-2007
DPA	Develop a departmental gender action plan for integrating gender perspectives into its conflict prevention, peacemaking and peacebuilding activities.	Gender action plan developed and implemented.	2005-2007
DPKO	Draw on departmental gender mainstreaming action plan.	Conflict prevention initiatives implemented.	2005
IFAD	Develop a policy on crisis prevention and recovery to integrate gender issues in prevention and recovery.	Effective policy on crisis prevention and recovery.	2005
ILO	Develop gender-focused policies for conflict prevention in Africa.	Gender-focused conflict prevention policies.	2005-2007
UNESCO	Create an enabling environment for freedom of the press and universal access to information as a means of preventing conflicts.	Advice on media legislation to authorities and capacity-building for media.	Ongoing
WFP	Ensure effective programming through continuous mainstreaming of gender into all field operations and operational sector policies.	Increase in gender-sensitive hunger prevention programmes.	Ongoing

A.2. Ensure full participation of women in all conflict prevention work and decision-making.

Entity	Strategies and actions	Main outputs	Time line
DDA, DPKO, UNFPA	Establish NGO consultative mechanisms and increase the role of NGOs and women's groups in conflict prevention; organize workshops on leadership and conflict prevention; strengthen the capacity of both governmental and non-governmental institutions and local groups to include women in conflict prevention.	Systematic NGO consultations, enhanced capacity of women's groups.	2005-2007

Entity	Strategies and actions	Main outputs	Time line
DPA	Support early warning and conflict prevention projects of local, regional and subregional women's organizations, through its Trust Fund for Preventive Action; increase ratio of women participating in conflict prevention programmes; organize workshops and seminars to sensitize local NGOs, women's groups, members of armed forces and government representatives on women's involvement in conflict prevention; and include gender issues on the agenda of its international meetings and conferences.	Support to women's NGOs; increased women's ratio in prevention programmes, sensitization and enhanced gender awareness.	Ongoing
ILO	Involve women through the creation of gender-balanced conflict prevention committees, including representatives of civil societies.	Equal participation in conflict prevention committees.	Ongoing
OHCHR	Strengthen the capacity of national human rights institutions through distance and regional training in conflict prevention.	Enhanced capacity of national human rights institutions in gender and conflict prevention.	Ongoing
UNIFEM	Promote women's participation in decision-making by bringing their skills and perspectives to bear on preventing the escalation and resurgence of conflict; promote the creation and resourcing of cross-party women's parliamentary caucuses to participate in structural forms of prevention.	Strengthened resources and capacities of women.	2005-2007

A.3. Ensure effective gender-sensitive early warning mechanisms, including through integrating gender-based early warning indicators into existing early warning processes and increasing access to information from women's groups and networks.

Entity	Strategies and actions	Main outputs	Time line
DPA	Improve channels of communication with local NGOs and women's groups for early warning, including regular consultations to reflect their views in reporting and monitoring; report on gender specific legislation and policies and women's participation in prevention; support the building of a preventive culture of peace at the community level, with special focus on women and indigenous populations.	Sharing of early warning information and use of gender early warning indicators.	Ongoing

Entity	Strategies and actions	Main outputs	Time line
ECA	Advocate for the creation of a Council for Women on Peace in the West Africa subregion.	Council for Women on Peace established.	2005-2006
ILO	Undertake research to identify determinants of gender differences in early warning mechanisms and develop indicators accordingly.	Gender-focused early warning mechanisms.	Ongoing
OHCHR	Facilitate Special Procedures' early warning function through communications with Governments and official country missions and women's organizations about violations of women's human rights and analysis of reported trends to increase capacity to signal early warning.	Exchange of field communications and increased capacity; gender-sensitive reporting.	Ongoing
UNDP	Revise conflict analysis and conflict sensitivity tools and methodologies to promote incorporation of gender perspective in conflict prevention work.	Gender review of the conflict development analysis methodology, process and related training curriculum for UNDP staff.	2005-2006
UNEP	Review needs for improvement in its gender-sensitive activities when environmental protection plays a role in conflict prevention.	Publication on "Mainstreaming gender in environmental assessment and early warning".	2005
UNICEF	Develop an early warning system to better inform responses to emergencies, including gender considerations as key component.	Gender-focused early warning system.	End of 2005
UNIFEM	Strengthen the collection of gender-sensitive data and statistics for use in early warning.	Early warning indicators piloted in three regions.	Ongoing
WFP	Reinforce successful efforts to mainstream gender analyses into food security, risks and livelihood assessments carried out through vulnerability analysis and mapping and emergency needs assessments. Mainstream gender into contingency planning guidelines.	Gender mainstreamed into emergency food security and emergency needs assessment guidelines, vulnerability analysis guidelines and contingency planning guidelines.	2005-2006
World Bank	Undertake a review of the conflict analysis framework in order to better integrate gender concerns in the analysis of conflict triggers and outcomes.	Proposed approach to sensitize the conflict analysis framework to gender issues, including the development of gender-appropriate indicators and conflict-related variables.	March 2006

A.4. Provide systematic training on gender issues for all staff working on early warning and conflict prevention.

Entity	Strategies and actions	Main outputs	Time line
DPA, DPKO, ILO, OHCHR, UNDP, UNHCR, WFP	Conduct training for headquarters and field-based staff and provide practical tools for integrating gender perspectives into conflict prevention work.	Enhanced capacity in prevention work.	Ongoing
UNSSC	Integrate gender perspectives into early warning and prevention training workshops.	Enhanced capacity.	Ongoing

B. Peacemaking and peacebuilding

B.1. Develop strategies, including training and capacity-building initiatives, to ensure women's full participation in all stages of the peace process, including in the negotiation and implementation of peace agreements, drafting and negotiation of constitutions and development of strategies for resettlement and rebuilding.

Entity	Strategies and actions	Main outputs	Time line
DPA, OSAGI, UNIFEM	Advocate for women's participation in peace negotiation processes.	Political support for increased participation of women.	Ongoing
DPA	Develop its departmental gender action plan for integrating gender perspectives into its conflict prevention, peacemaking and peacebuilding activities.	Gender action plan developed and implemented.	Ongoing
DPA, DPKO, OHCHR, UNHCR, UNFPA	Strengthen and develop women's role and preparation for and involvement in peacemaking, negotiation processes and elections by supporting capacity-building in lobbying, advocating, public speaking, mediation and negotiation skills.	Increased participation of women in all political processes.	Ongoing
ESCAP	Strengthen gender-responsive governance at regional and national levels in countries experiencing ongoing or post-conflict situations through development and implementation of a strategic programme framework.	Reduction of gender inequalities and enhanced socially inclusive development.	Ongoing

Entity	Strategies and actions	Main outputs	Time line
INSTRAW	Carry out a project on women and peace and security action plans.	Guide and workshops on developing national and organizational women and peace and security action plans.	2005
UNESCO	Develop an action plan for the Great Lakes region in Africa to identify women's strategic gender needs in consultation with representatives of government ministries, academia and women's groups and establish regional and subregional women's research centres.	Action plan and women's research centres.	Through 2007
UNHCR	Develop communication strategies (guidelines, leaflets, posters and audio-visual media) on the importance of women's participating in peacemaking; prepare and test training manuals tailored to support women's capacity-building; promote and facilitate the participation of women and girls in contributing to peace agreements.	Improved communication strategies and capacity-building.	2005-2006
UNIFEM	Promote women's leadership and participation in peace and transitional processes by supporting the establishment of networks of women's organizations; support dialogue and collaboration by women from opposing sides; develop guidelines to promote women's participation in peace processes. Continue to support the development of national action plans for the implementation of Security Council resolution 1325 (2000), the strengthening of reporting on the Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Discrimination against Women and the implementation of national commitments related to the Beijing Platform for Action.	Women's inclusion in formal and informal peacemaking and peace negotiations; support provided to national implementation plans for 1325 and enhanced reporting on the Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Discrimination against Women and implementation of national action plans in selected countries.	2006-2007
WFP	Pursue its policy to target at least 70 per cent of food-assisted training activities to women and adolescent girls; ensure that women participate in the management of physical assets created under food-for-work schemes.	Women's human capital developed; value of women's work and their local productivity promoted; increased women's access to capital, employment and productive resources.	Ongoing

B.2. Ensure that Security Council missions take into account gender considerations and the rights of women and children, including through consultation with local and international women's groups. Integrate gender perspectives into the terms of reference of Security Council visits and include gender specialists in teams.

Entity	Strategies and actions	Main outputs	Time line
DPA, DPKO, ILO, OHCHR, OSAGI, UNIFEM	Integrate gender perspectives in the terms of reference for Security Council fact-finding and assessment missions; provide information on the situation of women and girls in countries/regions concerned in briefing materials and country profiles provided to Security Council; facilitate meetings of Security Council missions with NGOs and women's groups; encourage the inclusion of a gender adviser in Security Council missions.	Gender-focused terms of reference, gender-specific briefing materials, gender-sensitive checklists and guidelines; perspectives of women incorporated in reports and recommendations. Updated country profiles maintained on UNIFEM portal www.womenwarpeace.org .	In connection with each mission

B.3. Ensure that gender perspectives and, in particular, the special needs and priorities of women and girls are taken into account in negotiating and implementing peace agreements.

Entity	Strategies and actions	Main outputs	Time line
DPA, OSAGI, UNIFEM	Encourage gender needs assessment, including budgetary needs, in the lead-up to peace agreement negotiations; advocate for the strong representation of women in delegations and the inclusion of gender-specific provisions to ensure women's effective participation in transitional and post-conflict mechanisms, including power-sharing agreements.	Gender-specific information to feed into the negotiations and advocacy.	For each peace process
DPA	Encourage and support the inclusion of gender-specific provisions in peace agreements that address women's political, social and economic security; consult with local women's groups and civil society organizations when planning for post-conflict reconstruction.	Peace agreements sensitive to women's rights and gender-focused projects.	Ongoing
DPKO	Maintain regular contacts between women's groups and the mission's top management in negotiating and implementing peace agreements.	Regular feedback from women's groups.	Ongoing

Entity	Strategies and actions	Main outputs	Time line
ILO, OHCHR	Develop gender-sensitive negotiation strategies and peace agreements, integrate gender analysis into all aspects of the agreement and encourage the adoption of a gender-sensitive approach, experience sharing and lessons learned.	Women's needs integrated into peace talks.	Ongoing

B.4. Support local women's peace initiatives and indigenous processes for conflict resolution.

Entity	Strategies and actions	Main outputs	Time line
DPA	Provide funding and logistical support for capacity-building; facilitate meetings of women's groups with formal negotiating parties.	Financial and logistical support; increased participation of local women.	Ongoing
DPKO, IFAD, ILO, UNDP, UNFPA, UN-Habitat, UNHCR, UNIFEM, UNITAR	Build partnerships with and support national and local women's organizations; document their strengths in conflict resolution processes and raise awareness with communities of methodologies of conflict resolution; develop training modules on peacebuilding and train representatives of women's organizations.	Women's organizations identified; methodologies and best practices documented; training of NGOs and networking.	2005-2007

B.5. Provide systematic training on gender issues for all personnel involved in peacemaking and peacebuilding efforts.

Entity	Strategies and actions	Main outputs	Time line
DPA, DPKO, UNDP, UNESCO, UNHCR, UNICEF, WFP	Raise awareness and educate for gender equality; train headquarters and field-based civilian, military and civilian police and humanitarian personnel on how to integrate gender perspectives into peacemaking and peacebuilding activities; train women professionals in election reporting and other initiatives to improve journalistic standards.	Gender-sensitive workshops or training modules prepared, gender awareness raised, enhanced staff capacity.	Ongoing
