Memorable Quotes

"Georgia shares the view that effective conflict prevention must start from an understanding of the broad and deep insecurity that permeates women's lives prior to conflict and the ways that pre-conflict structural inequality can facilitate violence and insecurity."

Mr. Kaha Imnadze
Permanent Representative of Georgia

Mr. Heiko Thoms
Deputy Permanent Representative of Germany

"A year ago, the adoption of resolution 2242 (2015) gave the Council a clear mandate to be more inclusive and to involve civil society in the implementation of the women and peace and security agenda. The Council needs to live up to that commitment and should open its country-specific considerations for briefings by civil society whenever possible."

Ms. Penelope Beckles
Permanent Representative of Trinidad and Tobago

"The resolution (1325) transcends the notion of women as victims of armed conflict and armed violence and recognises women as empowered and indispensable actors in decision-making efforts to address the issue of disarmament, non-proliferation and arms control."
